Prodital Leather

Prodital Leather is an Italian company that has been manufacturing refined bovine leather since 1978 for worldwide projects in residential, nautical and contract environments. What makes our leather distinctive is the experience of Lanfranco Arena, master of leather and owner of Prodital Leather, which operates in the tanning district of Arzignano®, Capital of Leather, in the heart of the Land of Venice.

A thousand solutions

Prodital Leather offers an array of leather: plain, vintage, embossed, pearly geometric, exotic etc. Most of our leather is available off the shelf. Each item is entirely customizable, both in pattern and color, within a range of over a thousand solutions.

Available bespoke options include metal overlays, manual touches, added textures and any technical supplement ranging from fire protection to water-proofing and anti-scratch coating.

Customization

Our leather is designed as to achieve the technical performance it is meant for. Upon request, we may also augment specific technical features (with anti-scratch, fire protection and water-proof treatments) while providing the respective certifications. We develop leather samples and mock-ups.

Paneling

For those meaning to cover a surface with a specific measure or shape of leather, we can provide panels cut out in advance, thus granting the right orientation, the budget optimization and a reduction in transportation fees.

Stock

Thanks to the ample selection of articles available in our stock and to the partnership with the best couriers, we can guarantee the prompt delivery of our leather either on racks or rolled in carton boxes.

Services

A judicious system

The tanning industry represents a circular economy by definition: its raw material, leather, is a byproduct of the meat industry otherwise destined for burial or incineration*. As it recovers and reuses this unused component, our manufacture generates new value thanks to a product boasting high-quality, versatility, elegance and durability.

This industry has a tradition as ancient as human history, and yet it does not forsake innovation. In fact, in the last 15 years our sector trends have been indicating a constant decline in water consumption (-15%), energy use (-37%) and chemicals (-8%)**. Moreover, only 2.4% of our waste is deemed harmful, while 77% is recycled in other fields; for example, discarded fat is refined into biofuel, trimmings form the base for gloves and accessories, collagen is reprocessed into food additives, glue, fertilizers, cosmetics, farmaceuticals and much more. Even water used in the production cycle is put back into nature once it is cleansed.

*Ethical claim according to Technical Specification UNI/ISO TS 17033
“Ethical claims and supporting information – Principles and requirements”.
ICEC, the institute for the certification of quality in the tanning industry, ascertains that animals whose hide is used in the production of leather have been put down solely for food consumption.

A certified supply chain

Prodital Leather guarantees transparency in its supply chain thanks to a certified work process. Specifically, the ISO 9001 certification attests to an efficient and high-performance managing process that maximizes clients' satisfaction; the ISO 14001 certification records an efficient use of resources and legal compliance in regards to environmental performance; finally, the IMO-MED B+D certification ensures that our fireproof articles are safe and suitable for watercrafts.

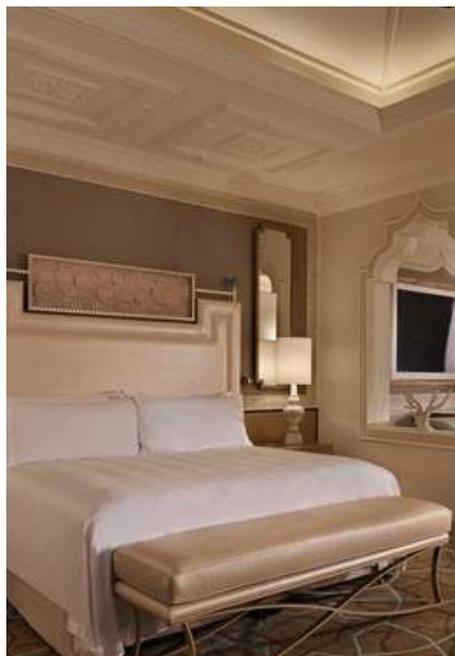

Each phase of tanning, dyeing and finishing is completed in Italy, therefore our leather is officially labeled "Made in Italy" according to the European standard UNI EN 16484 and the art.1 clause 8 of the Italian Act n°55 of 06/05/2010.
